

Abstract

A switchable-output encoder for encoding an input data sequence into an error protection encoded output sequence is switchable between two encoding modes. The encoder modes comprise a relatively complex mode suitable for a relatively high noise level channel and a relatively simple mode suitable for a relatively low noise level channel. A corresponding decoder is also discussed.